Water at Beaches Unclean, Guard Ears, Is Warning

The water at all Chicago beaches is contaminated, Health Commissioner Robertson said yesterday. He issued a warning to bathers to protect themselves against ear trouble by putting cotton, greased with vaseline, in their ears.

"The bathers have contaminated the water, and the lack of wind has prevented the dirty water from being carried away and replaced by fresh water," the commissioner said. "Eye, ear, nose, and throat trouble is bound to follow unless the bathers protect themselves.

"The water should be kept out of the mouth and eyes as much as possible."
